the year

Welcome to the 2010 yearbook! As you flip through the pages, you will learn much about what happened throughout the year, good times and bad. With only two of us creating this record of time, there was a lot of fun mixed with stressful and chaotic moments, but we seemed to pull it all together so that future generations can experience the good times of this year just as we have. Enjoy!

Senior Class of 2010: Timothy Engelhart, Jamie Parsons, Matthew Heine, Ally Robertson, Chelsy Podoll, Matthew Haas, Rance Maddocks, Lee Brixey, Cole Regynski, Bryson Geffre and Cole Truebenbach all pose on the gazebo at Simmons Park. When the group went out to take their final class photos they canvassed the town and found all the "fun" spots to snap a group picture. The girls commented that they were surprised at how cooperative the boys were, even suggesting sites for additional photos!

Original Seniors: Only seven seniors including Matthew Haas, Timothy Engelhart, Bryson Geffre, Jamie Parsons, Chelsy Podoll, Lee Brixey and Matthew Heine have managed to stick together since kindergarten.

What will you miss the most about high school?

"I will miss all of my friends from high school. I will also miss talking to Russ and the cooks in the morning!"

-Bryson Geffre

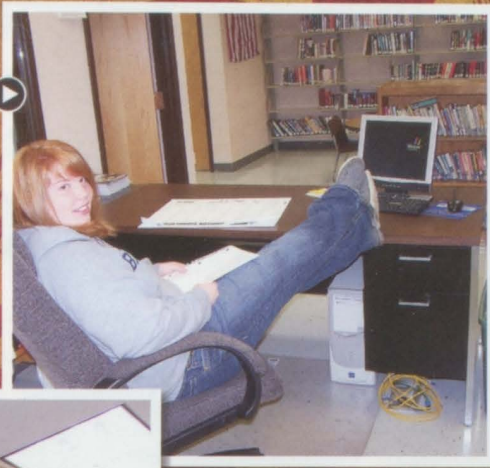

"I will probably miss hanging out with friends and not being able to hear all my classmates' jokes during class!"

-Ally Robertson

Seniors

For the seniors of 2010, a new record for procrastination was set. They managed to wait until mid-March to decide what class flower and motto they wanted to use for their graduation ceremony. The class colors of red and black were decided immediately at the beginning of the year, but the flower and motto would take a little longer. It wasn't the fact that they couldn't agree, as much as the fact that they couldn't choose. Of course, it didn't really help that a majority of the class traveled to vo-tech everyday, making it hard for the class to be together and discuss such topics. This year, with the busy schedules, the seniors didn't exactly get to spend a lot of time with each other.

Senior class president Chelsy Podoll commented, "It's hard to make some class decisions because we are never together. The vo-tech people don't get back until after 10 a.m., and even then, we only have one class together."

Graduation selections weren't the only hard decisions that the seniors had to make this year. There were a lot of bigger life choices that they had to make including where they wanted to go to college and what they wanted to major in. Eight of the 11 graduates plan to attend college, meaning that they've already made those choices, while some grads are still contemplating their future moves.

Juniors

Crazy Driver!: Tyler Sumption takes the wheel while Casson Campbell rides shotgun during the demonstration on the dangers of drunk driving.

Lose a Bet?: Junior Derek Barondeau grins and bears it while decked out in his Vikings gear. Derek had made a bet with custodian Russ Furman that the Green Bay Packers would beat the Minnesota Vikings, which he obviously lost.

Members of the Class of 2011 faced and handled the many challenges of their junior year. From ACT tests to decorating for prom, this class of 24 students never missed a beat as they claimed the status of upper classmen.

Early in the fall, fundraising for prom began as the group managed concession stands at all home sports events. The junior class was in charge of it all, from ordering the food for the stand to selling it at the games. Class advisers Jackie Brokaw and Curt Eisenbeisz helped out every step of the way also. With their advisers help they were set up and ready for every game. This allowed them to raise enough money to host the prom in April.

Juniors started making arrangements for prom within the first month of school. The class had the tasks of picking a theme, ordering decorations, hiring a photographer and DJ and making arrangements for the banquet. Prom was very stressful and at times overwhelming, however in the end the class agreed it was more than worth it. Although members of the group admit to being opinionated, they were all able to put their differences aside in order to make decisions and make the night unforgettable.

 -Alex Bretsch

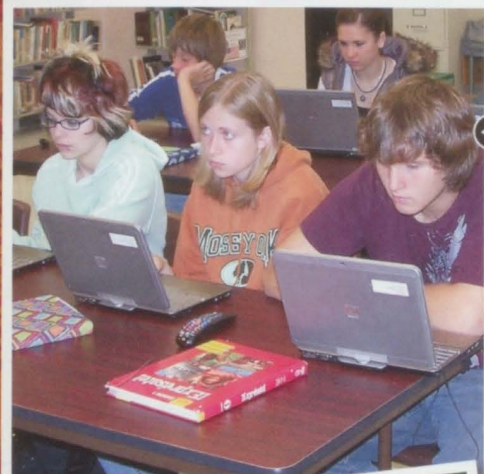

"To relieve stress, I go up to my room and watch TV, and I go on the computer."

Sophomores

A Work Of Art: Terry Taylor works diligently on a project for Lakota Arts. The project was to cut out a piece of leather that resembled a buffalo and then sew beads on it. The class was taught by Mrs. Brokaw.

Pure Focus: This year, the sophomores were offered Spanish I, which most of them took advantage of. There were so many students in this class that they had to split them up into two rooms, one in the library, and one in Mrs. Hertel's room.

Becoming sophomores meant facing more problems and challenges, and that's just what the sophomore class encountered this year. Of course, as students get older the classes get tougher and not a single sophomore argued with that. As sophomores, the group was offered more classes and this included foreign language over the DDN system. Taking a distance class required the group to take more responsibility for their school work. When asked what their hardest class was their response was Spanish I for those who took part in it and also geometry.

Along with Spanish I and geometry their other classes consisted of Lakota arts, history, band, chorus, biology, accounting and speech/literature. When asked the easiest class for the year it came to no surprise the results were band and chorus, the classes with little, if any, homework.

Along with all the homework and classes, sophomores also continued their involvement in extra-curricular activities including sports, music and drama.

"For many, our goal was just to make it through the year, and with some hard work and determination we are almost there," commented Aly Perry, who handled a full class schedule and still managed to be involved in sports, music and drama.

Science Fair: Sophomore Abby Sumption presents her science fair board, "Finger Prints," to the public at the Science Fair in March.

Study Hard: Sophomore John Edwards gets ready to do some biology homework in Mrs. Hertel's study hall. Since there are so few students in this study hall, it is easier to focus.

Kindergarten Fun!: The freshmen class spent time reading to the kindergarten class. Teacher Tonya Zinter reported that the kindergarteners loved this project because the "older" kids were so nice to them.

What is the coolest feature about having your own laptop?

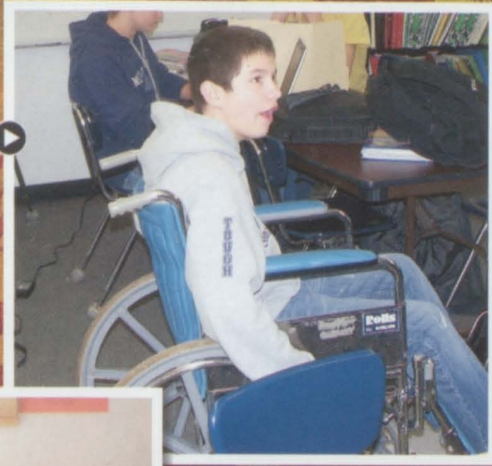

"The coolest feature is getting to do more projects...and you don't need to wait for the computer lab to be open for research."
-Taryn Flinn

-Mat Achen

Freshmen

A Day In The Life Of...: Nathan Haar discovers what it feels like to be in a wheelchair. The freshman did a study on disabilities for their psychology class.

Not only did the freshman become high school students this year and experience new classes, they also got new technology added to their daily lives. Classes got harder, like normal, but the freshman also got new tablets to help them complete assignments.

These tablets caused both new experiences and new challenges for the freshman. According to the group, the new laptops were not hard to get used to. The majority of the students liked the laptops because they made it easier to take notes in class instead of writing them by hand. They also said that it's convenient to not have to go to the computer lab every time they need the Internet. However, there were also some downfalls to the laptops. Students said it frustrated them when their laptop failed or when they had unexpected problems. Overall, the students enjoyed their new technology resources.

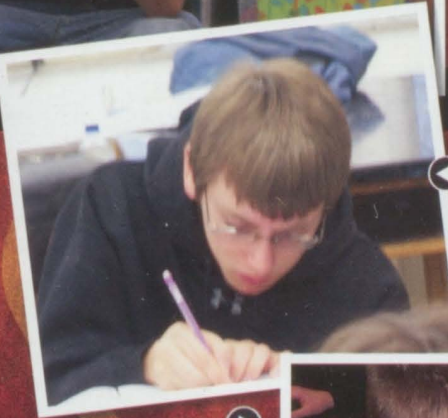

Classes for the freshman included physical science, art, psychology, band, chorus, Algebra I, world history, computer applications (MOUS) and English/literature. The majority of the freshman commented that their hardest class was world history. They also all agreed that art was one of their easier classes.

Overall, the freshmen enjoyed their new experiences as high school students, and have managed to push through and overcome the challenges.

A Helping Hand: Devon Linthorne helps out Kash Cutler on a bird house project. This project incorporated life science and animals with geometry as the freshmen taught the kindergartners about lines and angles, and the way the two work together.

Searching for the Answer: Peyton Podolf previews the chapter in science as she searches for answers to the questions on her study guide.

Take A Look In The Book: Brian Sumption flips through the pages of his science book to do some last minute cramming before a test. Though this is a very popular tactic for studying, some learned that it is always better to be prepared earlier.

Junior High

Just Checking: Eighth Grader Derek Simmons takes a quick glance at the lunch menu in between bells. The students are allowed three minutes to move from one class to the next.

Junior high can be exciting, sometimes confusing and downright crazy, but it's definitely a learning experience. Seventh graders, who make a huge transition from being the top dogs in elementary to being at the bottom of the food chain in the wild world of high school, felt the most change.

Most of the seventh graders agreed with Meghan Conn who said, "What's really different is changing from class to class and having different teachers for each one."

However, seventh grade offered new experiences too. Paige Podoll explained, "Getting more freedom!"

They became familiar with the niceties of high school, namely more sports opportunities and especially going downtown during lunch hour.

Sebastian Hammel said, "Going downtown to get pop and potato chips is awesome!"

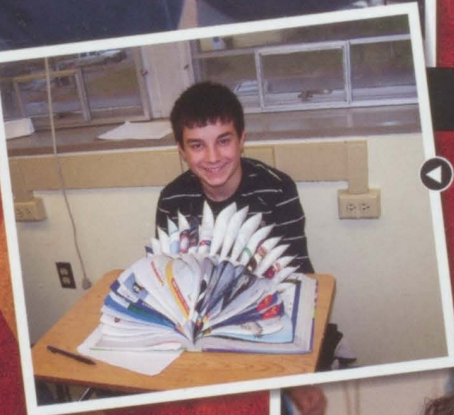

After their initial year in junior high, the eighth graders, had all these opportunities mastered.

"I like that in junior high you don't have to worry about getting credits to graduate," noted Carston Hertel.

Responsibilities will change next year as they enter high school, but for now, both classes are focusing on the fun and freedom of junior high.

Taking a Stroll: Seventh graders Meghan Conn and Katie Rystrom take a walk uptown on a windy day after lunch. This was a new privilege for the seventh graders and one that the class totally enjoyed.

Lights Out: Dane Campbell considers doing his homework the old fashion way since the electricity went out, forcing eighth graders to move to the lunchroom in natural light.

Elementary School Days

Elementary students continued to add to their education base, as they progressed through the grades. Concentrated study in all areas, following state standards, kept students learning as they prepared for advancement and standardized testing. Enhanced learning experiences were offered two Fridays each month and served to enrich basic curriculum and standards in all grades. Students signed up if they planned to attend Friday enhancement sessions and parents brought them to school to work in their classrooms from 10 a.m. to noon.

"My most cherished memories throughout the years would have to be having an opportunity to teach for so long with the same families, whether they be parents or children."
-Mrs. Hegge

What are your most cherished memories of your years in Frederick?

"What I cherish the most is when I see or hear about the accomplishments my students have achieved in high school and beyond. I want to believe that in some small way I helped a student be successful."
-Mrs. Brooks

Staff

Teachers and staff who have scheduled their entire lives around a five-day school week quickly adapted to a four-day week. The day began a little earlier and ended a little later, with every other Friday as an open day. Two Fridays each month teachers were in school, attending meetings, offering enhancement and tutoring and learning through professional development sessions. During November, school was in session every Friday (except Thanksgiving weekend), so the required number of days could be scheduled. Also, Fridays were used to make-up snow days, which landed students and staff in school a couple of Fridays during the winter months. School continued until the end of May, with students leaving on Thursday, May 27, and teachers putting in their final work day on Friday, May 28. Teachers depended on workshops and organizations such as the Northeast Area Reading Council to keep them aware of current educational trends and materials. A majority of the elementary staff joined the reading council, as did a couple of junior/senior high teachers. Nearly every staff member was involved in these workshops and educational organizations in addition to the rigors of keeping up with students, plans, grades and extra-curricular activities.

Feeling Fruity?:

Morning Coffee: Bus drivers Dawn Nixon and John Himanga stop at the school for some coffee after their morning route.

Mariah Gustafson

There was a change this year as to the time of the day that the first hour classes started. Instead of the regular 8:25 a.m. start, this year's Frederick Area students began their day at 8:15 a.m. Since there was only one study hall this first hour of the day, not many students got the chance to slack.

A large group of juniors and seniors was missing during the mornings because of the vo-tec changes made from. Instead of following tradition and having vocational classes in the afternoon, the students traveled to Aberdeen everyday at 7:10 a.m. and returned to school at about 10:10 a.m. This was a result of the new four-day week that was implemented.

In the downstairs classrooms, Mrs. Sumption started everyday teaching physical science to the freshmen.

Peyton Podoll commented, "We are learning about atoms, elements and the periodic table. It's going pretty well for me right now, or at least I understand it...so far!"

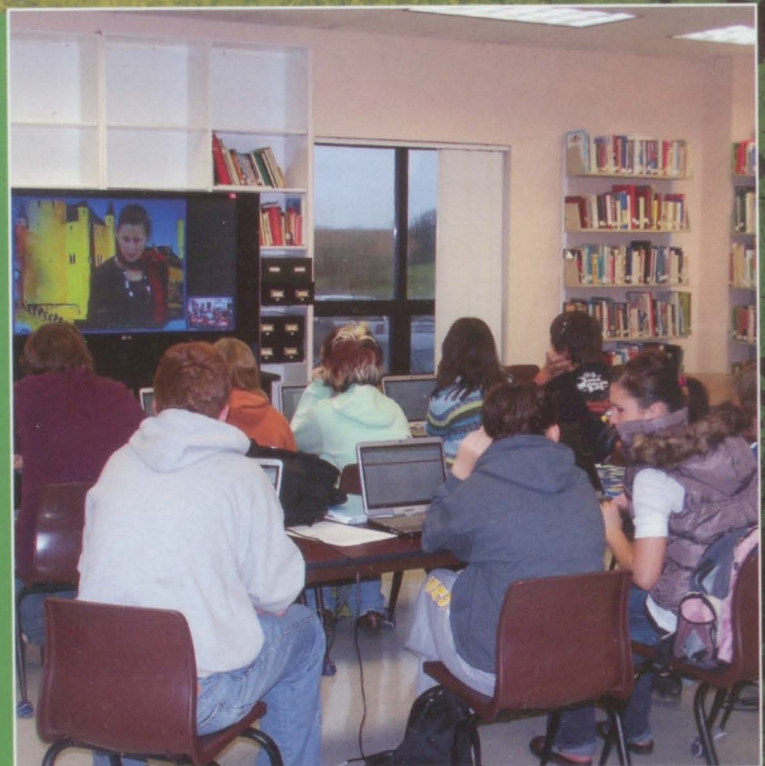

The other downstairs classroom belonged to Mr. Morlock, who taught junior high health first hour.

Spanish I, mentored by Mrs. Hertel and Mr. Eisenbeisz was another transformation made this year by the sophomores. There were so many students in this class that they had to be split into two rooms known to the teacher as "Frederick Elementary" (in the library) and "Frederick High School" (in Mrs. Hertel's room). Getting Spanish I class done right away in the morning was a relief to them, but also meant that they had to have their homework done first thing.

For the upstairs classes, Mrs. Barondeau taught Accounting I for half of the week and had a study hall for the other half. Also, Mrs. Ruenz flip-flopped between Publications and Journalism II throughout the year, while Mrs. Wampler taught the junior high students different aspects of art.

First Hour

¡Español! The sophomores intently listen to their teacher, Señora Gayla Martens at Northern State University, as she teaches them the Spanish language. Even though school was not in session in Frederick on Fridays, the Spanish class continued to be sent to other schools enrolled, so some Frederick students opted to come in on Fridays to listen to their first hour class.

E-mentor: Mr. Eisenbeisz collects papers from the sophomores in Spanish I. This section of the class met in the library each day. A couple of the students also came in on Fridays to keep up with the class work.

Jared Minard

"I use physical science in my life...it deals with things I do every day."

Teacher!: Junior Spencer Rall checks his assignments in Journalism II.

Study, Study, Study!: Seventh graders use their study hall to prepare for an upcoming test.

Moving on to the second class of the day, the students were more awake and alert and found it easier to concentrate. They worked in classes such as ninth grade art with Mrs. Wampler and Algebra II with Mr. Downes. He commented, "I am very proud of the students' attitudes and efforts in Algebra II. They have worked very hard for me and I am thankful for that." In junior high, the seventh graders studied Life Science with Mrs. Sumption and the eighth graders learned English with Mrs. Brokaw. Seventh grader Kirsten Rall commented, "We are learning about mollusks right now, and it is going good." Paige Podoll added, "My favorite thing that we learned about was plant life." Other second hour classes included US History with the sophomores taught by Mr. Morlock and psychology with the freshman taught by Mrs. Hertel. The freshman have done various exercises to better understand the human mind including memory projects and disorder presentations.

Just Hangin' Out: Seventh graders Nathan Block, Michaela Kocher and Sebastian Hammel take a moment to "center" themselves before class starts in Mrs. Sumption's room.

Super Size It!
Sophomores Keely Geffre and Faith Wolter create a giant paint pallet to present at the Granery. Though these two girls weren't enrolled in any art classes, the project just appealed to them. "The Granery was a lot different this year because it was at the ARCC in Aberdeen instead, but it was still a fun! Our favorite was the mural!" commented the two.

Slideshow Time: Mr. Jenson, student teacher under the supervision of Mr. Morlock, gives the sophomores their notes in the form of a slideshow. The slideshow method was used in almost all of Mr. Morlock's classes, utilizing the laptops and wireless internet as well as the mounted overhead projectors located on each classroom ceiling.

Funny Moment: Seventh graders Paige Podoll and Becca Mittleider share a laugh during life science class.

"Art is a fun way to release energy that we keep in all day!"

Writing Assignment: Eighth graders go to work on a long writing assignment in Mrs. Brokaw's English class.

Algebra II: Juniors Krista Stoddard and Amanda Haar sit closer to Mr. Downes to get a better idea of the lesson.

Pep Band: Junior Spencer Rall performs with the pep band during a home game. Practicing pep band music was just one of many activities that occupied band students during third hour.

At Frederick Area, there has traditionally been an hour dedicated to band and chorus. Third hour also included business math and chemistry to accommodate the non-music students.

Students played "The Angels Mix", "Bobsled Run" and "Holiday Snippets" at the Christmas Concert and "Best of Kiss", "Best of Journey" and "Stairway to Heaven" at the Spring Concert. The chorus sang "Jazz Kyrie" and "Deck the Hall" at the Christmas Concert and "Orinoco Flow", "Open Arms" and "Til' the Walls Come Down" at the Spring Concert. This year, the band consisted of 65 students and the chorus included 41 students in grades 7 through 12.

In addition to concerts, music students also participated in all-state band and chorus and the spring contest.

Mr. Downes, a first year teacher at Frederick, taught business math to the students that weren't involved in band or chorus. In this class, they learned about everyday math skills that could be used in the future.

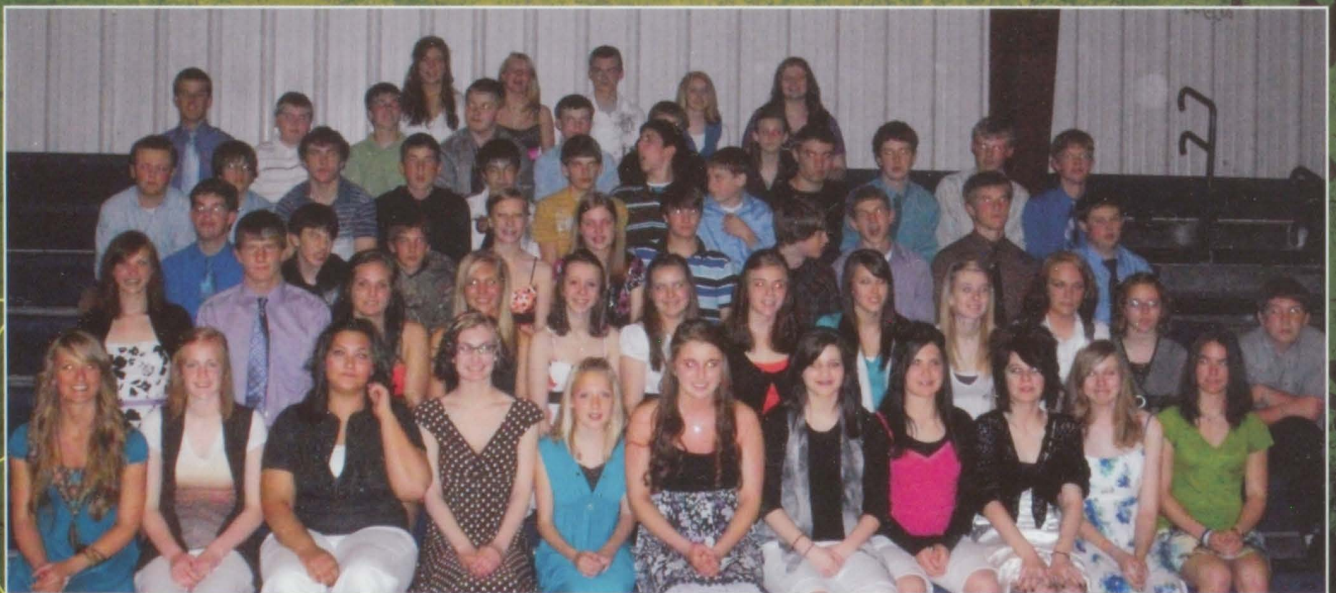

Senior Jamie Parsons commented, "This is math that I will take with me after school and use in real life experiences."

Chemistry was a small class of three this hour compared to the seventh hour class. They learned about atoms, molecules and how elements react. Taking chemistry third hour allowed the senior boys to leave school earlier in the afternoon, since they arrived early for vocational classes.

Build A Bridge And Get Over It: Ally Robertson and Jamie Parsons use toothpicks to build a bridge for Business Math.

By the time fourth hour rolled around, everyone was getting anxious for lunch. The cooks had the food ready and while elementary classes had begun eating, everyone in the building could smell the day's menu...especially if it included garlic toast or cinnamon rolls. Despite the aromas, students knew they needed to stay focused on their classes, which included seventhth grade math with Mr. Downes and eighth grade math with Mrs. Hertel.

Eighth grader Cole Hinz commented, "Math right now is fairly simple because we are reviewing for the Dakota Step Test, but we have learned a lot about equations, volume and surface area this year." He added, "Math is a little bit harder this year than it was last year."

Fourth seemed to be the hour for math classes, as the freshmen tackled Algebra I with Mrs. Barondeau. The general consensus seemed to be that learning Algebra I was a lot different and harder than their junior high math classes had been. Study halls were often dedicated to getting Algebra I assignments completed or seeking extra help from the teacher.

Sophomores took on the challenge of biology before lunch, while the juniors had physical education for the first semester and government during the second semester. Over the duration of the first semester, the students took part in various activities including yoga, pilates, kickboxing, self-defense and archery.

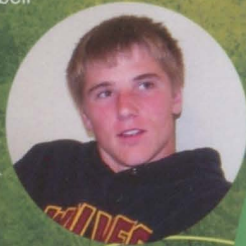

During their last year of high school, the senior class took English fourth hour, the only time the group was together in class. They started out the year learning about poems and short novels and after the first semester, they read the book "Grapes of Wrath". They ended the year writing and putting together their senior memory books, a collection of chapters about stages of their lives.

How Touching: Senior Rance Maddocks shows just how touched he is about making his senior memory book. This book, made in Mrs. Brokaw's class, is a tradition for seniors and most of them display the projects at their graduation receptions.

So Sad: Although it was a psych project, Dalton Kopecky carried his "child" Carlos everywhere with him. The injured child even showed up in math class.

Assignment Time: Senior Chelsy Podoll checks facts in her text book as she works to get a personal finance assignment done.

After a short lunch break, students filed back to the classrooms ready to learn. In the junior high area, the eighth graders returned to face social studies and the seventh graders took on English.

Freshman learned about foreign affairs in world history during the first semester and geography during the second semester, both classes taught by Mr. Morlock.

Taryn Flinn commented, "Right now we are learning the countries of Asia. It's actually kind of fun because we each get to do a power point over a few of the countries."

Sophomores were introduced to Accounting I over the first semester this hour, taught by Mrs. Barondeau. Mrs. Barondeau also taught personal finance this hour to a small group of upper classmen. This class taught them about financial concepts that they will use in the near future with college just around the corner.

Senior Chelsy Podoll commented, "Taking this class has really helped me understand many things about banking, saving money and loans. I will definitely be grateful that I took this class, especially since I will be out on my own soon."

Other seniors that weren't in personal finance took current events during this hour taught by Mrs. Hertel. The course mainly consisted of checking the news, both local and nation-wide, for big events happening around the world. They spent the hour considering how these events would or could affect them or others.

Juniors took part in Algebra II this hour taught by Mr. Downes. Learning the equations proved to be somewhat difficult for some students, while others passed the class effortlessly.

Filling Time: Students in fifth hour study hall discuss what they have left to finish up as the school year draws to a close. Krista Stoddard (center) enjoyed the study hall all year, while sophomores moved to study hall second semester after completing accounting the first semester. This move created a large study hall, which had to move to the library to accomodate everyone.

Small Class: Though there are only four students in the classroom, there are six enrolled in personal finance. Seniors Jamie Parsons and Ally Robertson took the class independently, meaning that they weren't in class, but still did assignments and tests.

Working Hard: Junior Thomas Kronberg works on his stuffed buffalo for Lakota Arts. This class was taught online and the students did many other activities including painting a buffalo jaw, making leather boxes and beading.

Science Project: Hailey Sumption displays the clay mountain and rock exhibit that she made with her group in science class.

As they headed towards the end of the day, students did not have as many classes during sixth hour. The seniors that remained at the school had a study hall and some of the teachers had elementary classes. Mr. Morlock taught elementary physical education, Mrs. Wampler taught elementary art and Mr. Eisenbiesz taught elementary music.

In the junior high, Ms. Duxbury took a break from her usual fifth grade duties and taught the seventhth graders about social studies. She borrowed Mr. Morlock's room everyday for this class. The eighth graders learned about rocks and weather in earth science with Mrs. Sumption.

Other classes that took place during sixth hour included MOUS (Advanced Computer) with the freshmen taught by Mrs. Hertel and geometry with the sophomores taught by Mrs. Barondeau. In MOUS, students learned how to properly use computers and they developed other technological skills. In geometry class, the sophomores learned about angles, lines and geometric equations that will help them in daily tasks, even if they don't think so.

The last class held sixth hour was 11th grade English taught by Mrs. Brokaw. Throughout the year, the students worked on various types of reading including short stories, novels and poems.

Junior Shannen Maunu commented, "I enjoy reading, and it comes easy to me. Also, it was kind of interesting learning about the different writing styles that there are out there."

Building Bridges: Matt Heine and Justin Bock begin construction of their bridge, using toothpicks and glue, during business math class. This group, consisting of mostly juniors and seniors, had two weeks to build a bridge with a partner. In addition to creating a design that could hold weight, the students also had to work out a budget to pay for supplies. The winners ended up being Austin Gunther and Cody Mehlhaff (working in the extreme back) with a bridge that held 450 pounds for almost five minutes.

Full House: When the juniors show up for class, even the English room is filled to capacity. With 24 students, the group was the biggest class in the school. Often, they were split between classes, but sixth hour English brought the entire group together to study literature and writing.

Concentration: Junior Angela Goodall focuses on understanding her best-selling novel for a final project in English. Each student read a novel selected from the school library and then prepared presentations to share with the class.

Senior Study Hall: Seniors Jamie Parsons, Ally Robertson, Matt Heine and Chelsy Podoll finish up assignments during their study hall.

Finally getting to the last hour of the day, students at Frederick Area were anxious to finish up their classes. Surviving that final hour was sometimes the toughest part of the day.

During 7th hour, the seventh graders had computer class first semester and physical education second semester, while the eighth graders had physical education first semester and computer class second semester. In PE, the students took part in variety of activities including archery, soccer, basketball games and, when the weather was nice enough, they would take trips down to the football field for some kickball.

The freshman class rounded their day off with English. In this class they read mystery novels from Sherlock Holmes, "Romeo and Juliet", and Of Mice and Men. They also wrote a research paper and learned about documentation.

This class was taught by Mrs. Ruenz, who commented, "The mystery unit was the best part of the year because students were able to read short stories online, and they also made a group presentation."

Mrs. Brokaw taught sophomore English this hour, and the juniors and seniors took on the challenge of chemistry with Mrs. Sumption. The students learned to balance chemical equations, and took part in some laboratory experiments.

Senior Ally Robertson commented, "It's really interesting to learn about all the microscopic things in this world. A lot of us going into health-related careers will use this information in our future studies."

All Eyes Up Front: The eighth graders pay close attention to what is being shown on Mrs. Hertel's computer screen projected on the wall in MOUS class. Students learned to use computers, information that will be crucial for the future.

FOOTBALL

Leola-Frederick's Titans football team concluded their season with a record of 10-1. They ended up being conference and regional champions, a feat which has never been accomplished by the Titans. The season was by far the best ever in Titan's history and the best season Leola or Frederick has had in 20 some years.

The Titans were truly a team that fought until the end of every play and never gave up. The Titans didn't have one person on the team that weighed over 200 pounds, but what the Titans lacked in size they made up for with effort and heart. The Titan football team will be graduating four seniors and they will be missed.

Tyler Sumption stated, "It was a great season and I think everyone had a lot of fun. Everyone coming back plans to work hard in the weight room so we can have even more success next season."

Charge! Sophomore Adam Dutenhoffer powers through the defense and clears a hole for senior Matt Haas to charge through. Later in the game, Haas got his eye cut open making it difficult to see, but it didn't slow him down. The Titans scored 40 points against the Ipswich Tigers and held them to just eight points.

VOLLEYBALL

Leola/Frederick's Titans volleyball girls ended the season over 500 with a record of 15-12 under yet another new coaching staff consisting of Coaches Leesa Christenson and Chelsea Dutenhoffer. The Titans lost in the first round of districts to Groton even though they had beaten the Tigers during regular season.

Coach Christenson noted, "The price of success is hard work, dedication to the job at hand and the determination that whether we win or lose we have applied the best of ourselves to the task." She explained that she truly believes this fully defines the hard work, effort and dedication that the Titans players contributed to the 2009 season.

Chelsy Podoll, senior captain, stated, "This season a lot of experience and leadership roles were gained. It was a fun season for me!"

Angela Goodall added, "Many girls stepped up and played their roles when we needed them most. We are going to miss the seniors next year, but I believe the younger girls will be able to step up and fill in where we need them."

Huddle Up!: The Titans gather around the huddle to hear the game plan. There were 10 players on varsity alone, so the huddle seemed to get somewhat crowded for the Titans.

Support From The Bench: The girls that aren't in the game cheer loud and support the players on the court at a home game against the Britton/Hecla Braves. Though this was one of the most intense games of the season, the Titans were defeated. The Titans won alternating games and couldn't quite pull off the win in the fifth game. The support from their teammates really helped them keep going and playing intensely right up to the final hit.

CROSS-COUNTRY

This cross-country season featured a number of successes for the Frederick Titans, as five juniors qualified for the state meet, which was held in Rapid City on October 24. Brandon Haas, Austin Minard, Derek Barondeau, Breanna Helland and Erin Wolter each placed in the top 20 at regions, earning themselves a spot at the state meet. The highest finisher at state was Haas, who completed the race just shy of placing, as he got 26th and the top 25 receive medals at state.

Another notable success for the Titans this year happened at the region meet, when the boys ran to victory and placed second as a team, nipping third place by a mere two points.

Haas conveyed the boys' unforgettable performance by saying, "I think the team had a good season and I can't wait for next year. I think we could have a chance of winning state."

Throughout the season, both the boys' and girls' teams accumulated numerous medals and awards. Six Titans were also able to letter this year. Those who did so were Haas, Minard, Barondeau, Helland, Wolter and sophomore Courtney Schlosser.

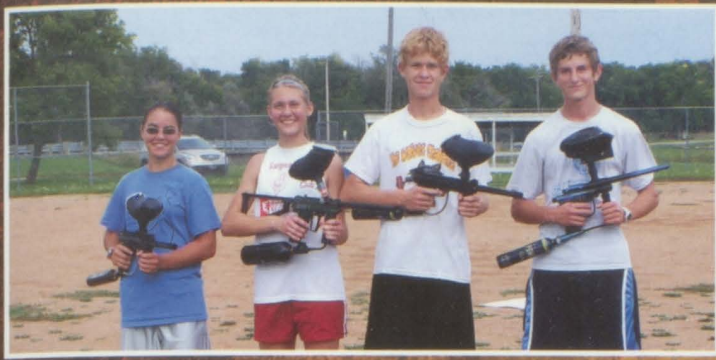

Wolter, a rookie, explained her first cross-country season by saying, "I thought it was awesome! After placing at the first meet, I thought, if I can do this at every meet, I could be good at this. And I ended up going to the state meet. I'm definitely going to go all out next year."

Reflecting on her runners' seasons, Coach Janelle Barondeau commented, "The cross-country teams competed very solidly all year. The boys' team stepped it up a notch this season, and then another notch at regions."

BOYS BASKETBALL

After a strong football season, the boys hoped the victories would carry over to their basketball season. This held true, for the most part, until the Titans were defeated in the district championship game by the Roncalli Cavaliers. The Titans ended their season with 11 wins and 9 losses, keeping them above 500. Another milestone was set when the Titans boys basketball team won their first-round district game to advance to the championship game. This was a big win, especially since it was the first district game won since the team made the switch to class A.

"This season was great. We achieved our goals and had underclassmen step up and take leadership roles," commented Tyler Sumption. Unfortunately, the Titans will be losing three seniors and two starters who really did a good job boosting the program. On the other hand, the Titans will be returning three starters for next season, making for a bright future. "This season was fun and I feel like we surprised a lot of people who didn't think we would win many games," stated senior Matthew Haas.

Supporting The Team: Junior and senior girls from Frederick make t-shirts to support the boys team during district play. Each girl had a letter printed on the front and back of their shirt and all together, they spelled out "We Love Our Boys!" on the front, and "Biggest Fans" on the back. Apparently the shirts helped, as the boys won their first-round game!

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Though he has had experience in assisting the Titans, this was the first year that Dan Vanderwal had the privilege of being named their head coach. After being assistant under former Titan's head coach Randy Barondeau, Vanderwal liked many of the things that the Titans did last year, but put his own spin on them. The girls assistant coach was Justin Downes, who was a teacher at Frederick.

Coach Vanderwal commented, "I thought we had a very successful season. Our conference record in the LRC was 4-2 and our overall record was 11-9. Last year we were 3-4 in the conference, and 8-13 overall. We had some pretty big shoes to fill, but I felt that Steph Jung and Ally Robertson did a real nice job of filling that void. I felt that we were successful not only because of our winning record, but also because of how hard the girls worked and how they continued to improve during the season." Coach Vanderwal added, "They came to practice with good attitudes, even after some of the tough losses we had. As far as next year, it will be hard to replace an inside duo such as Steph and Chelsy (Podoll), but with some hard work put in during the off-season to improve their skills, the team as a whole will be ready to roll again next season".

Senior Chelsy Podoll stated, "I thought that we really had a successful season. There were a lot of good things that happened on and off the court that brought us all together to play as a team and win games."

The Titans went 11-9 on the season and lost to the Groton Tigers in the first round of the district games. Although this was disappointing, the girls still felt that their team had a good run.

From early-season qualifiers to stunning performances at Howard Wood to a state title, this year's track season proved successful for the Frederick Titans. A total of 11 people made it to state, nine boys and two girls. Four of those boys, Derek Barondeau, Tyler Sumption, Brandon Haas and Cole Truebenbach capped their season by winning the 1600-meter relay at state with a time of 3:31.05. They held off Philip, who finished with a 3:31.34. The same four also placed third in the 3200-meter relay with a time of 8:21.16. Brandon finished fourth in the 300-meter hurdles with a :42.16 and Adam Duterhoffer was third in the state as he threw the shot 50-4. Brian Sumption tied for sixth in the high jump with a jump of 5'11". The state track meet was held in Sioux Falls on Friday and Saturday, May 28 and 29.

A handful of records were also broken throughout the season.

At only the second meet of the year, Brian jumped 5'11" to state-qualify and set a Titan record. Injuries kept him sidelined during much of the season, but he was back for the state meet.

One relay that qualified at the Howard Wood Relays was the boys' 1600 meter relay with a memorable performance. Although they had to compete in the slow heat, the boys nabbed second place overall.

Adam shattered the school record in shot put several times, despite not beginning to throw until late in the season due to previous injuries. He managed to dominate in shot put at the region meet, launching an impressive 48'10", which annihilated the Titan record he had just set a week before.

State Bound: These athletes left for state track as soon as they returned from physicals on Thursday, May 27. They include (Front) Cole Regynski, Caylee Hertel, Kayla Haas. # RODEO / GOLF

Although participation in high school rodeo dropped to two students, golf numbers were up with 10 students participating in the spring sport.

Senior Rance Maddocks continued his participation in high school rodeo for the fourth year. Through the years, he has concentrated on just one event that held his enthusiasm: riding bulls. Despite serious injuries, he continues to return to bull riding and plans for rodeo to be part of his future. In high school competitions, Rance earned fifth in state last year. He also competes in PBR and PRCA rodeos. Thomas Kronberg's only event was riding bareback.

When practices began, returning golfers were joined by beginning athletes who wanted to learn to play golf, as they considered it a life-long sport.

Although she had no experience playing golf, junior Krista Stoddard became a team member because she wanted to learn to play the game. "I did learn a lot and golfing is a great opportunity to be outside," she explained.

Just For Fun: Thomas Kronberg not only rides bareback, but also enjoys riding little green wagons in his spare time! This was Kronberg's first year at Frederick Area, but he has competed in high school rodeo all the years he has been eligible.

Girls Varsity Golf Team: Coach Trish Erickson, Abby Sumption, Kyra Tschappat, Krista Stoddard, Calli Crawford, Coach Scott Campbell, Jessica Waltman, Coach Don Glover.

Boys Varsity and Junior Varsity Golf Team: Coach Scott Campbell, Josh Waltman, Wyatt Heine, Dane Campbell, Casson Campbell, Justin Toennis, Collin Engelhart, Timothy Engelhart and Coach Don Glover.

Rance Maddocks

Dane Campbell

Go For The Win: Junior Thomas Kronberg holds on during his bareback ride at the rodeo in Mandan, ND. When asked about the ride, Kronberg explained that he "Doesn't remember much and probably got another concussion or something!" Kronberg has participated in high school rodeo for a number of years.

Homecoming

Timothy Engelhart and Chelsy Podoll were crowned Homecoming King and Queen following the parade on September 11. Other Homecoming candidates included Cole Truebenbach, Matt Haas, Ally Robertson and Nicole Schultz.

In the parade, juniors captured first place with their float, "Beating the Wildcats: So Easy a Caveman Could Do It," which featured Austin Gunther dressed up as a caveman. Commenting on his part in the parade, Austin comically said, "I was just a caveman doing my job."

High school and elementary students spent Friday morning constructing floats, which made up the parade. The high school band marched to the song "Jenny".

Homecoming week included a variety of dress-up days. Traditionally, Tuesday was Pajama Day. Hippie Day was chosen for Wednesday, Thursday was Twin Day and Friday was School Spirit Day.

The Titans football team topped off the week with a decisive win over Northwestern on Friday night.

"Cleaning Up The Competition!" Josh Severson shows his school spirit by riding on the float made by the freshmen. This float's theme was from an Oxi-Clean commercial with the saying "Cleaning up the Competition".

Banner Carriers: Katie Rystrom and Rebecca Mittleider, both seventh graders, are the first thing the crowd sees as the girls carry the banner in front of the band. The two led the musicians for both the Homecoming and Gypsy Day parades.

C) Eighth Grade Float: The eighth grade class made a banner reading "Get Scored On By Master T-Nut!" to put on their float, following the popular Snickers commercials.

D) Volleyball Girls: Mariah Gustafson, Kayla Haas and Megan Walworth line up along with the rest of their team to be introduced as the 2009 Titan's volleyball team at coronation.

E) So Easy A Caveman Can Do It: The theme for the floats this year was commercials. The junior class decided to portray the popular GEICO commercial starring Austin Gunther on their float which won first place.

High School Marching Band:

Drama

Oral interpretation students started looking for pieces as soon as school started, a process that was made easier with an organized file drawer filled with ideas and selections that had been used in the past. Another change this year was an on-line test for the adviser, rather than the mandatory rules meeting.

Frederick Area had entries in six of the seven divisions at the district competition in Aberdeen on Wednesday, November 4, and advanced to regions in oratory and duet. Breanna Helland, Shannon Maunu and Andrew Perleberg competed in the region tourney at Webster on Tuesday, November 17. From there, Breanna took her oratory selection, "Last Lecture," to state. She competed in Sioux Falls on Saturday, December 5, and received a superior award.

The annual spring play was held March 23, with practices beginning on March 3. "The More the Scariest" kept 15 students and two directors busy through 11 practices and a six-hour dress rehearsal. The script, by Pat Cook, was an interesting mix of drama and humor with a surprise ending that left viewers thinking about what had just happened.

"This is one of the best plays I've ever read," said Carma Ruenz, director. "It has a good story....you have to think about it and figure out how the actions weave together. I love the way the play ends exactly the way it started!"

Play Cast: Members of the cast for "The More the Scariest" include (Front) Jacob Ham, Andrew Perleberg, Shannon Maunu, Stefani Sumption, Hattie Zinter, Angela Goodall, Spencer Rall, Aly Perry. (Back) Meghan Conn, Taryn Flinn, Rebecca Mittleider, Dustin Bergan, Cole Hinz, Garrett Mittleider, Katie Rystrom. The students in grades 7-11 met for practices each day after school. Normal practices were for about two hours. However, dress rehearsal became a marathon as the cast practiced for six hours.

Repeaters: Jacob Ham and Becca Mittleider repeat their characters' lines three times during the course of the play.

Not Too Scary: The lawyer (Angela Goodall) and the paranormal (Hattie Zinter) consider a description of what's been happening in the haunted mansion.

A

A) On the Air!: Luella (Stef Sumption) and Maxine (Aly Perry) chat through their on-air interview, which results in a trip to a haunted mansion and a night of eerie events.

B

B) Lights and Set: Bryson Geffre and Russ Furman discuss placement for stage lights and microphones.

C

C) Zoom!: "I've got a zoom lens," notes cameraman Mike (Spencer Rall) as he attempts to keep his distance from the spooky happenings at Barnowl Mansion.

E) Show Time: Once the 15-member cast got to the actual performance of "The More the Scariest", things went relatively smoothly, considering the bumpy road that practices had been.

What character did you play?

"I played the part of Willow DeWisp, a sarcastic psychic."

-Shannen Maunu

"I was a repeater and Andrew was the out-of-work cop!"

-Jacob Ham

"I was the Woman in White, a repeater. I had to remember to say my lines the same way every time I came on stage."

-Katie Rystrom

Prom

Lighted pillars and walkways defined the set with a black and purple color scheme for the prom, which was held Saturday, April 10. "I Don't Wanna Miss A Thing" was the theme chosen by the Junior Class and 24 couples walked through the Grand March to the song, sung by Aerosmith. "Prom was great. Everyone got involved and that made the dance and post prom fun times," explained Chelsy Podoll, senior, who attended prom all four years of high school. Junior Spencer Rall agreed, "I think it was because no one just sat there....everyone was dancing. We're actually growing up."

Pictures by Ketterling Photography began at 4 p.m. and a banquet featuring grilled chicken breast or Swiss steak was served at 5:30 p.m. The Grand March was held at 7 p.m.

The dance, with music provided by the Dancing Jukebox from Aberdeen, began after Grand March and continued until midnight. Juniors, seniors and their dates then participated in the after prom party, which included a magician/hypnotist and casino games. Breakfast was served at LaDonna Sumption's afterwards at about 4:30 a.m.

"Getting everything lined up and planned for prom was a lot of work, but I think it all worked out well and everybody had a great time," said junior president, Breanna Helland.

Beautiful Dresses, Beautiful Smiles!: Caylee Hertel, Krista Stoddard, Chelsey Zinter and Calli Crawford model the latest in prom attire. Styles this year were sleeker and incorporated animal prints.

Game Time!: A girls' team and a boys' team formed as the DJ announced that the games would begin during the dance. Each team had to run in a straight line to the other end of the floor with a noodle between their legs and holding two balloons!

Show Those Muscles: Junior girls show the boys that they have muscles too! The juniors and seniors enjoyed a variety of fun picture opportunities during the prom.

A) Blues Brothers: Matt Heine and Austin Gunther grab the mic during the dance to sing a country song. This was only one of many country songs sung by the duo that night.

C) You Pick Me Up: Chelsy Podoll hoists up Ally Robertson and commented, "This isn't as easy as it looks in a dress!"

E) All Aboard! The students enjoy dancing by forming a train that ventured all the way to the lunch room and back during the dance. Other group dances included the cha-cha slide, the macarena and the popular chicken dance.

Graduation

Though it wasn't the nicest of days with the South Dakota wind, the seniors of Frederick Area High School were anxious, nervous and happy for their special day: graduation. At 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 22, the community gathered along with the friends and family of the graduates to celebrate them moving on to the next phase of their lives. First, Krysti Mikkonen sang "Every Moment". Next, Salutatorian Matthew Haas delivered an emotional speech talking about each classmate and especially thanking all of his family, friends, teachers and coaches. The Valedictorian speech was then given by Chelsy Podoll, who commented to classmates, "Always be true to yourself, and remember that life isn't about finding yourself, it's about creating yourself. Never let the odds keep you from doing what you know in your heart you were meant to do." After the speeches were done and the tears wiped away, the slideshow of memories, made by Jamie Parsons, was shown. Then, the seniors delivered their class flower, a red rose, to their parents and shared a hug. After the gifts were delivered, the seniors received exactly what they had all worked so hard for: their diplomas. This was the end of graduation and the seniors walked by twos out of the gym to Tonya Zinter playing the recessional.

Senior Gifts: Class advisers Mrs. Fall and Mrs. Barondeau gave each graduate a laundry basket for their present. The baskets doubled as gift carriers for cards and packages. And they will be great to haul laundry home from college!

Finally! Jamie Parsons receives her diploma from School Board President Lance Podoll. After 13 years of school this is the moment that the graduates had been waiting for!

Where do you see yourself in 10 years?

"I see myself retired from my law firm and beginning to build my dream house!"
-Lee Brixey

"I see myself having fun, living the single life and becoming a World Champion Bullrider!!!"
-Rance Maddocks

"Becoming a Hygienist/Assistant while married with two kids."
-Ally Robertson
